

One in Tazew County.
The biggest deposit of zinc ore discovered in Tazew county has been uncovered near Long Creek, in the southwest corner of that county. Two one-bearing leads about 15 feet apart, immediately underlying a beautiful bed of pink and gray marble, have been located for a distance of 2,000 feet along the mountain side. These leads have been shot into in several places, disclosing the finest grade of zinc carbonate, carrying lead and lead. They have been carefully tested and show at every point a wonderful richness. The hillsides are strewn with boulders of decayed ore.

Neither Team Won.
The Ottawa (Kan.) university football team, which recently defeated Kansas university by a score of 16 to 5, played the Missouri university Tigers at Columbia Saturday and after a hard-fought contest the score stood 6 to 6. Friends of the Missouri team were jubilant over the result. While outside Columbia the general impression was that Missouri had no team, the Tigers following has never lost hope, knowing that it was simply hard luck which has kept the team from making a better showing.

A jury refused to award him anything by reason of his experience at the hands of the mob.

Still Hauling Water.
A recent dispatch from Mexico said: The big question in parts of central Missouri is water and where to get it. The protracted drought of last summer never has been thoroughly broken and some of the farmers are still hauling water for miles. The fall rains have not come, and if it freezes without raining the situation will be more serious. A Boone county farmer says he passed in 12 miles 107 wagons hauling water. Some of them were hauling eight miles.

St. Louis, Nov. 9.—At the time of the publication of the list of department buildings of the World's fair, with the approximate dimensions of each, the statement was appended that the total cost of the buildings would exceed $6,000,000. Since that time the dimensions of several buildings have been changed, and the cost of each building has been estimated by Chief Architect Taylor, with the assistance of the several architects of the board. A new schedule, giving the dimensions of each building, together with its cost, has been furnished by Mr. Taylor. In submitting the list, Mr. Taylor explains that the cost indicated for each building does not include that of sculpture, triumphal bridges, cascades, hanging gardens and other decorative work that will beautify the main picture. MODEL PUBLIC LIBRARY.
Movement on Foot to Establish a Model Public Library at the St. Louis World's Fair.
St. Louis, Nov. 9.—The movement for the establishment of a model public library on the site of the World's fair is rapidly assuming definite proportions. The first persons to advocate this movement were the trustees of the St. Louis public library, who have seen from the first an excellent opportunity to extend the usefulness of the library and to insure a delightful resting place on the grounds. At first this movement concerned itself only with the establishment of an ordinary library. More recently, however, the idea of a model library has been developed, as being a valuable exhibition of a perfected library system, and the board of trustees of the public library forwarded to the World's fair officials a communication setting forth in detail the advantages of a plan for a model library.

Librarian Frederick M. Cruden, of St. Louis public library, believes that library supply houses would furnish the model library without charge, and that publishers could be induced to supply reading matter in the same way. He is also of the opinion that the library building should be permanent, with an attempt at architectural beauty, the library, after the fair, forming one of the most valuable branches of the public library in the city.

Director Taylor, talking about the location that could be offered for the model library, said: "If the library board could supply the funds, we could assign them an attractive location on the grounds, at Lindell boulevard and Sinker road, if they wished. If they cannot, difficulties would arise. The library board can, I believe, make available for that purpose a part of the million dollars Mr. Carnegie has offered St. Louis for a public library and branches. If they can do this, we certainly can have a model library on the grounds."

The Filipinos, apparently, attempted to repeat the Samar tactics, but the Americans, who were breakfasting fully armed, completely routed the insurgents, who left five men dead on the field, each having a rifle and ammunition. One American was seriously wounded.

Capt. Noyes, of the Thirtieth infantry, commanding a detachment of 50 men, has captured a deserter named Richter, of the Sixth artillery, wearing the uniform of an insurgent lieutenant.

Maj. Pitcher says he recently captured three officers and a large part of an insurgent company, all fully armed. It is believed the insurgents recently received an illicit supply of munitions of war.

The Chinese Indemnity.
Washington, Nov. 12.—The United States so far has not named its representatives on the committee of bankers at Shanghai who were to act as the collectors and distributors of the international indemnity fund of 450,000,000 taels with interest. The delay in the case of this government is caused by the absence of any American bank in China. Unless American financiers can become interested in a bank in the orient, the United States will probably be obliged to name a British fiscal agent.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 12.—Newell C. Rathbun, who was supposed to have died in a Jeffersonville (Ind.) hotel last Thursday, was arrested in Louisville yesterday. According to Rathbun the corpse which was shipped to Little Rock for burial as the body of Rathbun was the body of W. L. Ten Eyke.

The police say Rathbun has confessed to desertion from the United States army and to having formed a plan to fraudulently collect $4,000 insurance on his life, but that he denies having killed the man who died in the Jeffersonville hotel. Rathbun was arrested about 11 o'clock yesterday morning at the United States recruiting station in Louisville. He is held as a fugitive from justice.

The arrest was made on information from Sergeant Skinner, of the United States recruiting station. Rathbun enlisted under the name of "Lou Root, Detroit."

Sergeant Skinner had read the story of the Jeffersonville case and the circumstances connected with the new recruit aroused his suspicions. One of these was the fact that the man had on a government suit of underwear. He said he had bought the garments from a soldier friend. Another circumstance was his knowledge of army affairs about Little Rock. On Saturday he passed the examination and enlisted.

At the police station Rathbun was put through the sweating process, and under pressure made the following statement, according to his inquiries:

"My name is Newell C. Rathbun, and my home is in Little Rock, Ark. Several months ago I deserted from the army post at Plattsburg, N. Y., in company with another recruit by the name of W. H. Ellis. I soon lost sight of him, and went on to Little Rock. There I was married, and afterward took out the insurance policies."

"I came to Louisville about ten days ago and formed a plan to make the insurance company think I was dead, so that I could collect the insurance. I fell in with a man, who said his name was W. L. Ten Eyke, in front of the Salvation Army headquarters in Louisville, and told him of my plan, and he agreed to help me. Our plan was to obtain a corpse from some place put in a hotel in Jeffersonville and then set fire to the hotel."

"While we were in Jeffersonville we took a number of drinks and Ten Eyke got drunk. I think his death was caused by drinking. I put the letters addressed to me in his pocket and left. I did not kill him. I then came to Louisville and went to the recruiting office and enlisted. My real home is in Detroit."

The police are trying to establish the identity of the dead man. One of their theories is that he was a tramp whom Rathbun had fallen in with. The police have telegraphed to the Little Rock authorities to hold the corpse. A gold watch bearing the name of "W. H. Ellis" was found on Rathbun. He refuses to say where he got it. The police say the handwriting of "Lou Root," the recruit, was very similar to the signature "W. L. Ten Eyke" on the Jeffersonville hotel register.

Coroner Coats of Jeffersonville states that he examined the stomach of the dead man and found traces of enough laudanum to kill two men.

He declares that she has seen the body only once, and being but a glance, and that since that time she has been too nearly prostrated to again undergo the ordeal. He declares that there is not the remotest evidence of collusion on the part of any member of the family in the perpetration of any fraud. He further declares that the family have been frightened into making certain statements attributed to them.

Three Out of a Possible Two.
Six of the Bangor Convicts Recaptured.
Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 11.—Another day has added one more to the list of escaped Fort Leavenworth convicts captured, that of Lawrence Lewis, who was mortally wounded, this morning, near Quenemo, Kas., while making a dash through a cordon of armed deputies. Now there are but 13 prisoners at large.

Lewis is a white boy 20 years of age, who was sent up in October, 1900, to undergo a five years' sentence for larceny. He was tracked to a wooded place near Quenemo by the city marshal of that place, which is situated 40 miles southwest from Fort Leavenworth, and a dozen men bearing rifles. An order to surrender was met with defiance, and Lewis, unarmed and practically surrounded, darted for the nearest opening. He had gone scarcely a hundred yards when a bullet from a Winchester pierced his lung from behind and brought him to the ground. Bleeding and fatally wounded, Lewis was taken to the marshal's office and cared for, while Warden McLaughrey was notified.

Three distinct gangs of convicts have been reported at points within 15 miles around Topeka since last night, and although a horde of penitentiary guards, deputy sheriffs and farmers have been on the go all day, night fell with only one capture, that of Lewis, reported.

From the descriptions received Warden McLaughrey believes that the two captors of Sheriff Cook were Arthur Hewitt, white, and Lon Southerland, a part Indian. Hewitt, with Frank Thompson, a negro, were ringleaders in the outbreak, and the warden yesterday announced a reward for their capture. Hewitt and Southerland were both serving five-year sentences for larceny. Hewitt is 23 years of age, while Southerland is about 18.

At 5:30 o'clock this evening a message was received at the penitentiary stating that Thompson, with three other convicts, had been traced to near Council Grove this afternoon and was being followed closely.

The officials at Topeka, both county and city, are filled with revenge being foiled at Pauline, and are being every energy to overhaul the particular convicts, who they feel to believe are in hiding about miles from the scene where yesterday's exciting episode was laid.
